You might wonder what happens to AFF leaders you support when they are ready for a next step. Nick Cooper joined AFF in 2013 and became a chapter leader within six months. He recently finished his term of service as Atlanta chapter leader.

Starting in fall 2016, Nick will pursue a Ph.D. in economics at George Mason University in Virginia. His impact will multiply as he inspires students and advocates free market ideas in academia.

You make it possible for AFF Atlanta to be one of the most active chapters in the country. AFF Atlanta has events monthly, and a recent panel had more than 90 people in attendance. Whatever the topic, you bring articulate speakers and stimulating debates. AFF Atlanta collaborates widely with other liberty groups and serves as a central hub of free market advocacy.

Past Atlanta chapter leader, Jason Riddle, said, “Over the past two years, Nick worked determinedly on all fronts to grow the liberty community in Atlanta to one of the most active in the country. We will miss Nick, but we are excited to follow his future success.”

Nick Cooper is thankful for your support of him and other chapter leaders. Because of you, he grew his network and was empowered to advocate liberty. Nick (right) is pictured with AFF Atlanta leaders and speakers.
Meet Your New Director of Development

Experienced Professional David Hoyt Joins AFF Team

America’s Future Foundation welcomes David Hoyt as Director of Development this August. He will oversee fundraising operations and form relationships with AFF supporters across the country.

“It is an honor and a privilege to join AFF and add to the tremendous growth that our donors make possible. I have been extremely impressed with Roger and the team, and I look forward to being a part of the successful trajectory of growth,” David noted.

David previously served as Director of Development at Young Americans for Liberty, helping it grow many fold over its first three years. He later worked as a fundraising consultant for a number of pro-liberty non-profit groups and campaigns. Most recently he worked with supporters of Americans for Prosperity.

Asked what drew him to AFF, David said, “I’ve known AFF for a long time, having come to events in D.C. What really attracted me to the group is the inspiring leadership and vision of the team. As Andrew Breitbart observed, ‘politics is downstream from culture,’ and AFF is the vanguard of the liberty revolution in America, working directly with future leaders. I couldn’t be happier to be part of this transformative work.”

David looks forward to meeting you. If you would like to welcome him, please email david@americasfuture.org.

AFF director of development David Hoyt and his wife Lindsay enjoy an afternoon together.
You Help Young People Transition to Their First Job
Innovative Panel Provides Career Advice to Young Professionals

Every semester, interns come to Washington D.C. to work for legislators on Capitol Hill. They graduate and aim to advance liberty through Congress. More than 160 interns attended an AFF event this summer, a co-hosted panel with Leadership Institute and Heritage Foundation, called “Welcome to Washington.”

AFF member Jared Meyer, from the Manhattan Institute for Policy Research, gave advice on the art of networking. For example, interns should attend events after work instead of going home to watch their favorite show. He asked the interns to “make a pledge that you will go to two events every week for the time you are here. It may sound like a lot, but it will make a difference in your future employment.”

Heritage Foundation foreign policy analyst Ana Quintana talked about her experience looking for jobs. Her advice was to maintain the relationships made during the internship. Paul Alfonse, from the Leadership Institute, suggested that interns should supplement their work. They ought to invest in themselves by attending policy briefings, receiving training, and writing op-eds, he commented.

Christopher Nosko, intern at Students For Liberty, and a student at the University of North Carolina Charlotte, commented, “The event was valuable to someone new to Washington. The speakers were helpful and knowledgeable when it came to best practices to succeed as an intern. Getting to meet and network with the other interns and speakers was a plus.”

Your support of AFF events like “Welcome to Washington” helps young people advance liberty at their internship and beyond.

Jared Meyer speaks to new professionals about his experience. His advice includes joining AFF and taking advantage of training like the programs you made possible for him.

Your support of AFF allows for Christopher and other interns to learn and succeed while spreading freedom and liberty. He and his peers are rising stars who will carry the torch of liberty for generations to come.
You Can Fill the Gap After Graduation
Liberty-Minded Young Professionals Lack Resources to Advance Liberty

Do you remember when you graduated from college? Every year, millions of young people start their first job and their journey as a young professional. Your investment in AFF makes it possible for them to meet like-minded peers, continue learning the ideas of liberty, and develop skills to become lifelong, effective advocates for our ideas.

Each year, millions are invested in campus liberty organizations (see below) to educate students about free market principles and ideas. But, what happens to these people when they graduate? Your support of AFF fills this gap by offering valuable opportunities for recent graduates to stay involved and become lifelong, effective advocates.

You Equip Advocates for Liberty on Capitol Hill
AFF Teaches Young Congressional Staff To Effectively Advance Liberty

This summer, you allowed interns and young professionals to learn from four established staffers about their experiences. More than 75 congressional interns attended an AFF program called “So You Want to be a Hill Staffer?” You allowed interns and young professionals to learn from four established staffers about their experiences. The panel included a deputy press secretary, an economist, a legislative assistant, and a clerk.

Interns received advice about all aspects of working on Capitol Hill. Wesley Gwinn and SoRelle Wyckoff shared how they landed their jobs. Wesley had to be persistent while applying for jobs and SoRelle’s networking skills helped her earn a position. Sam Mulopulos and Andrew McKeown spoke about how interns can make the most of their experience. Using the resources provided by employers and taking initiative will get interns recommendations and jobs, they advised.

Your support ensures that liberty-minded young people who come to work on Capitol Hill are aware of and inspired by the ideas of liberty. You give them unique opportunities to develop skills and make connections that help them become lifelong advocates for your ideas. Some may even become Members of Congress.

You bring an optimistic message to young people by supporting AFF. A panel at FreedomFest in Las Vegas featured (from left) Roger Custer, Carrie Sheffield, John Mackey, Kevin Harrington, and Don Smith. Speakers made the point that despite large government, young people can achieve the American Dream, especially if free market policy solutions are implemented.
“Communicating Ideas That Work” Through Writing
You Inspire Young Writers through AFF Writing Fellows Program

Stephanie Slade, AFF Writing Program Manager, uses your support to inspire young writers. She reports how the program, “takes promising young writers and connects them to experienced professionals. You help them take their careers to the next level, and get free market philosophy in front of as many eyeballs as possible.”

With your continued support, this program will produce twenty-four well-trained writers each year who will advocate your ideas in publications nationwide. In the first half of 2016, your graduates of AFF writing programs published 183 free market pieces in 20 publications.

“AFF’s writing program has been incredibly helpful as I aspire to become an influential writer in an increasingly polarized culture. I’m so grateful for the opportunity to participate in a fellowship that pushes me to excel as a writer, helps me improve my writing techniques, and prepares me to communicate ideas that work.”

Past speakers include:
• Anneke Green, White House Writers Group
• Mollie Hemingway, The Federalist
• Alexis Simendinger, RealClearPolitics
• Rob Bluey, Heritage Foundation
What Will Your Legacy Be?
Leave a Legacy of Liberty with a Gift to AFF in Your Will

Your estate gift for liberty will inspire young people to advance your ideas among their peers for generations.

What kind of legacy will you leave for future generations? How can you preserve and expand liberty for your children and grandchildren so they have the same or more opportunity than you did?

One way is to consider a planned gift to America’s Future Foundation. By leaving part of your estate to AFF, you will ensure that young professionals nationwide will be educated about the ideas of liberty.

Your support will ensure for decades to come that free markets, limited government, and individual liberty are preserved and defended.

To make AFF a beneficiary in your will, simply contact your attorney and insert the following language: “I give, devise, and bequeath to America’s Future Foundation, tax identification number 52-1928321, 1513 16th Street NW, Washington, DC 20036 (insert percentage, amount or nature of gift, or remainder of estate) to be used for educational purposes.”

Please notify us when you decide to make a legacy gift so you can receive special recognition in AFF’s Legacy for Liberty Society.

New Partnership Joins Bay Area Liberty Advocates
Collaborating Widely on Free Market Ideas in Liberal San Francisco

Some of AFF’s success has come in the places you least expect it – liberal cities like San Francisco. You make it possible for AFF San Francisco to bring young people together to learn the ideas of liberty and collaborate with like-minded friends. In June, AFF launched a new partnership with the Young Leaders Circle (YLC) at the Pacific Research Institute. An event at Anchor Brewing Company featured Robbie Tripp, a San Francisco author, speaking about the story of disruptive creativity found in Ayn Rand’s The Fountainhead. Sonia Arrison, Silicon Valley author of 100 Plus, discussed technology, creativity, and innovation in a free society.

You brought together more than 60 open-minded young people who are interested in free market solutions for the future in San Francisco. Attendees had the opportunity to network, hear from speakers, and take a tour of the brewery.

Paul Doherty, Chair of AFF San Francisco, remarked, “San Francisco and the greater Bay Area, while considered to be one of the most progressive areas of the country, is also home to many freethinkers, innovators and successful entrepreneurs.”

With your support, Paul (pictured left) and AFF San Francisco connect young professionals by creating partnerships with like-minded organizations.
More than 275 young professionals gathered at the Ronald Reagan Building in Washington, D.C for the annual AFF Gala on May 26. Guests enjoyed food, drinks, music, dancing, and networking with like-minded friends. AFF is grateful to the 9 individual sponsors and 32 organizational sponsors for their support which advances AFF’s mission to recruit and cultivate young professional leaders for liberty.

America’s Future Foundation’s mission is to recruit and cultivate young professionals to become effective, lifelong advocates for liberty.
